

SAVING THE WORLD, ONE GIRL AT A TIME

Do you ever feel overwhelmed by the disorder, disconnection, and disengagement of society today? Do you wish that we could listen to each other better, celebrate our differences, and come together to solve the big problems?

In response to the vast amounts of violence all over the globe, Archbishop Desmond Tutu says, "we need a revolution led by women." Not only is investing in girls and women the answer to fighting poverty, it is also the main strategy to healing our compassion-deprived communities. When girls and women are celebrated and activated, they become the mothers, the makers, the teachers, and the healers who will lead us in a Compassion Revolution.

Join Lynn Johnson for this revolutionary session where you will learn:

- ✔ The factors that hold girls back from their true power
- ✔ The 9 Essential Skills that girls must learn and practice for emotional empowerment
- ✔ Examples of dynamic projects that have made these types of investments in girls
- ✔ Techniques for teaching and mobilizing girls and women in your community

About Lynn Johnson

Lynn Johnson is a social entrepreneur, girl advocate, and co-founder/CEO of Go Girls! Camp, an innovative and highly popular summer camp where girls learn and practice social/emotional skills through the arts.

Founded in 2008 when 17 girls came together to make a play in a church basement in Oakland, CA, Go Girls! has grown into a movement to be reckoned with - serving hundreds of girls each summer in five different locations.

Go Girls! received international recognition when it was chosen as one of 15 finalists from over 600 entries from all over the world in Ashoka Changemakers' "Activating Empathy" competition and has been featured on the George Lucas Foundation's Edutopia website.

A graduate of Northwestern University and a former actor, director, and teaching artist, Lynn has worked with people of all ages from all over the country using theater as a tool for personal transformation and community development. Lynn works regularly as a speaker, facilitator, and workshop leader. She lives in Oakland, CA with her wife and daughter.

Lynn is a fantastic and engaging speaker. She is a visionary with big ideas and contagious energy. I highly recommend her!

-Nicole Yohalem, Non-Profit Leader & Youth Advocate

I've spent my whole career working in education. Lynn Johnson is simply the best educator with whom I've had the privilege to work. She has a masterful way of binding content to exciting learning experience, while connecting with each individual learner. She leads with heart and intuition, yet every learning moment is thoughtfully crafted and planned.

- Ed Center, Philanthropy professional

Lynn simply brings out the best in people. Her enthusiasm is contagious and inspiring. She's a person who keeps learning and keeps asking how to make things better, make things grow, have more impact. We need to cultivate more people like Lynn Johnson in the world.

-Christa Dahlstrom, Content Strategist & Learning Designer

As a fellow social entrepreneur who believes in the power of the arts to heal and transform I have enormous respect for Lynn Johnson. She is a visionary. Empowering girls and young women to find their voice and speak out in the face of wounding societal messages is a necessity for the mental and spiritual health of our world. Lynn Johnson is a gift to the planet.

- Armand Volkas, Drama Therapist, Founder of Living Arts Counseling Center